Weekly Summary

Compared to last week's market, the price averages on feeder steers and heifers weighing 400 lbs and down ended $3 to $5 lower while the heavier classes drew pressure from the financial woes past few days and ended with a drop of $8 to $12. Both slaughter cows and bulls ended around $5 lower.

The financial markets worldwide witnessed a financial meltdown starting last Friday. Both the stock markets and commodity markets felt major blows with huge losses. The nosebleed continued Monday, but the livestock futures regained their composure today and ended with positive closing figures. Even with weaker figures, buyers today were aggressive in their purchases.

COMMENTS

First and foremost, THANK YOU, to the most resilient set of buyers in Northeast, TX. Despite a horrible stock market and CME board fallout this week, we saw a red-hot calf market today. As the day began, we expected to see cash prices down $20-$30 and pulled through the night ending steady to $10 lower.

Packer cows and bulls are still very strong. The weakest market today would be on pairs and baby calves. We go into the next few weeks hoping for a summer rain and a stable CME. We appreciate the opportunity to work with each and every one of you!
